Texas County and District Attorney investigators routinely face law enforcement issues unique to their positions. Each year, TDCAA teams with representatives from across the state to develop training specifically designed for their special role. A week at Investigator School will help prepare even the most seasoned investigators for their daily grind, whether it's learning about proving up priors, using social media, or marijuana impairment. Additionally, this year's attendees can register for the Digital Evidence Workshop for training on a variety of digital media platforms and services. If that weren't enough, investigators in a prosecutor office for less than a year can participate in New Investigator School. There's truly something for everyone.

Registration for this seminar and other information is at tdcaa.com.
